Tuesday, August 4, 2009, the Wilburton office of "Mays", Housecall Home Health celebrated with their other offices in eastern Southeast Oklahoma

The "Mays" Housecall offices are experiencing success with happy patients and RN's with high ethics and humorous hearts

The A'Mays'ing Race challenges each office in the Southeastern Region of "Mays" Housecall to find ways of improving their services and finding more patients with their commitment for quality homecare

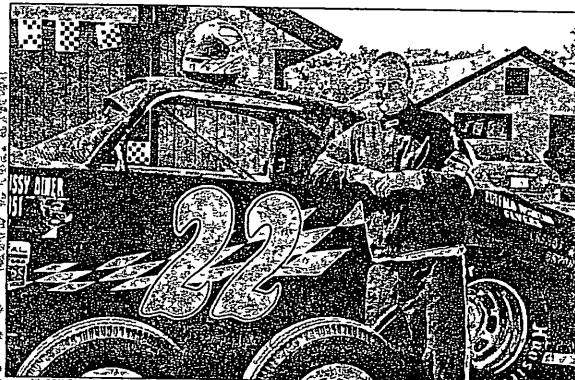

In 1991, Lola May Young, RN, from Antlers, Oklahoma began her Home Health Agency bringing in to the home health care her goal for a personal touch and genuine compassion for the patient which she felt was missing in the home health industry "Mays" Housecall Home Health can now be found throughout the state of Oklahoma and North-eastern Texas

Healing at home is the ideal solution for many people "Mays" patients are often able to leave the hospital sooner and still receive care at home without compromising their health or safety "Our health care specialists can meet with patients prior to their hospital discharge to prepare them for their transition home Once in the home, caregivers such as skilled nurses, home care aides, therapists-physical, occupational, and speech, and medical social workers treat the patients under physician supervision to ensure the best possible care available In addition, studies show that people heal faster once they return home where they feel the greatest emotional satisfaction", stated Valerie Templin, marketer for the Wilburton, Oklahoma office

The folks in the Wilburton, Oklahoma office travel to Haileyville, Hartshorne, the VA Colony, Panola, Red Oak, LeFlore, Fanshawe, Quanton, Kinta and McCurtain, along with all the neighborhoods and communities that make up the Wilburton area

Dustin Ward races at Honobia River Speedway on Highway 144 east of Nashoba, Oklahoma Dustin's mother, Deanna Tustun is the receptionist for the Wilburton Mays Housecall Home Health office. Dustin will do a few laps for Wilburton in the next week for Mays and brought his racecar to the Wilburton office for the A'Mays'ing Race celebration on August 4, 2009
